

ABSTRACT

A portable recorder device comprising means for informing, relating to the reception of pre-recorded messages, on programmed days and at programmed times. The device comprises a recorder and an internal clock triggering delivery of messages at desired dates and times, characterized in that it comprises a housing having two faces, an A face comprising a press button (1) and a loudspeaker (2) enabling a person with a deficient memory to press on the press button (1) in order to hear what should be done when an alarm is sounded, and a B face which is only accessible by opening a shutter which covers it, a B face comprising a microphone (14), a screen (3) indicating the date and time, programmable by means of the displacement keys (4) and coded information (7) for, when the date and time is fixed, recording the message by pressing on a key (5), the internal clock of the device enabling the alarm to be sounded at the desired time in order to hear the message.